MILLIONS OF "QUEER."

A Plot to Flood Cuba with Counterfeit Bank Bills.

Police Catch Two of the Alleged Conspirators in New York.

Remanded at the Tombs Till Detectives Find More Evidence.

The New York police have just unearthed and frustrated what promised to develop into a gigantic counterfeiting conspiracy. Detective-sergeants John O'Brien and John Taylor, of the Central office, after shadowing two men for three or four days, under the orders in the case Friday night, but the arrests in the case were not made until the prisoners were arraigned in the Tombs Court this morning.

Last Monday a West street cigar merchant informed Detective O'Brien that he had just been approached by two foreigners, who had inquired of him the address of some good engraver.

He said he had given them the address of several well-known engraving firms, but that, after going to these, the men had returned and said they would not do, but that an engraver "who worked by himself" was wanted to make a nice monogram.

The cigar man pointed out the two men to the detectives and they began their shadowing of the men.

The officers followed them two days and Tuesday, on the latter day they saw them enter the place of business of Louis Birnbaum, at 300 East Twenty-sixth street, who is a manufacturer of umbrellas, but was formerly an engraver.

After the men had left the shop Birnbaum told the detectives that the men had first asked him if he could do good monogram work, but upon his refusal, they had asked him if he was not an engraver. They then showed the engraver a note on the "Bank of Spain of the Isle of Cuba," of the denomination of 50 pesos, which is the equivalent of $40.

The men returned to Birnbaum's Wednesday, and Detective Taylor, who had been following them, saw them enter the shop. He saw them make arrangements for the work, for which they agreed to pay the engraver $500.

Friday night the would-be counterfeiters were placed under arrest at the residence of Putnam House, on Fourth avenue, where they had been stopping since their arrival in the city.

They were taken before Inspector McLaughlin, where one of them described himself as Manuel Rodriguez, a native of Cuba, and the other as Thomas J. Farr, an Englishman.

Farr was very communicative. He said that he had been living in Havana, where he made his living by counterfeiting bank bills, and that he had been sent to the United States by a gang of Spanish counterfeiters, who are operating all over Cuba.

He said they had got such a hold on him that he was afraid to shake loose from them. He said he came to this country recently on the Ward line steamship Seneca in the company of Rodriguez, and that he had been paid $500 pesos note, which he had made and distributed over Cuba and Spanish America by the gang.

Rodriguez is a surly, dark, uncommunicative Spaniard, who neither drinks nor smokes. Upon him was found the following telegram in Spanish:

"Mr. Joseph Gonzalez, St. Raphael, Habana: Send $500 by American cable to Putnam House, Fourth avenue."

Both men were brought into the Tombs Court Saturday, but remained. This morning Judge Justice granted the writ of habeas corpus on a charge of attempted forgery until the case could be investigated more thoroughly.

A BULLET IN HIS BRAIN.

Financial Difficulties the Cause of Manufacturer Blas's Suicide.

BRAUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 14.—D. M. Blas, proprietor of the Pacific Hotel, Worm committed suicide this morning at his home, 156 Orchard street.

Mr. Blas was a widower with no children. He was sixty years of age, and made his home with his sister. His family are people of means and position.

Mr. Blas's sister, Mrs. Roswell P. Green, heard him walking about his room about 3 or 4 o'clock this morning, but went to sleep some time afterwards.

Mr. Blas was usually very prompt at his breakfast, but this morning he did not appear. After waiting for him some time Mrs. Green went out to call him. She found him lying on the bed. Blood was still trickling from a wound in his temple.

In his right hand was a 35-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver. He had evidently been dead some time.

IS MISS MATHER MARRIED?

She Denies It, but Her Niece Says She Saw the Wedding.

Rich Brewer Pabst Believes His Son Is the Actress's Husband.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 14.—Margaret Mather was seen at her hotel here by a reporter and asked about her reported marriage to the son of the wealthy Milwaukee brewer, Pabst. She said the report was absolutely without foundation, but that it was no surprise to her, as she had already been married several times according to the stories circulated.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 14.—Late last night Capt. Pabst, the millionaire brewer, said he had been promptly informed about the marriage of his son and the actress Margaret Mather by the son himself, and that the young couple were on their way east to Milwaukee. The marriage, Capt. Pabst said, was a surprise to him and his family and not a particularly pleasant one.

Two days before Miss Mather began her engagement here, three weeks ago, young Pabst appeared at the California Hotel and engaged a suit of rooms numbered 400, 401, 402.

When Miss Mather arrived the rooms were occupied by herself and niece and Pabst. It was reported then that Pabst and Miss Mather had been married, but both denied the story.

Miss Mather's niece, however, confessed to a friend that they had been married. She said that they had been married at the California Hotel, and that they had been married by a justice of the peace.

While her Pabst was very devoted to the beautiful actress, and was constantly in her company. He attended every performance, and when Miss Mather was taken ill he was unrelenting in his attentions to her.

The papers here commented on young Pabst's devotion to the actress, but she said Pabst was merely a friend and they were not married. Pabst expressed himself as willing and anxious to marry her, but said that so far she had refused to be united to him.

Miss Mather left here Sunday to play an engagement in the southern part of the state and has appeared in Fresno and Los Angeles during the week. If the couple were married here they kept the secret well.

The fact that Miss Mather's niece, who accompanied her on the trip, had admitted that her aunt was married to Pabst, was a serious matter. It had reached here from Chicago.

The niece, Miss Dudley, confessed the marriage to a friend while here, in explanation of the intimacy existing between her aunt and Pabst. She said she witnessed the ceremony.

WAS HE POISONED?

Coroner Called to St. Vincent's Hospital to Make an Autopsy.

The coroner was called to St. Vincent's hospital this morning to make an autopsy on the body of an unknown man who was taken there early Saturday morning in an unconscious condition.

The man was picked up senseless in front of 208 Bleecker street, sixty years old, had gray hair and eyes and wore a dark plaid suit and derby hat.

When he was found on his person to indicate his identity.

It was said at the hospital this morning that the man had had symptoms of poisoning when brought in.

WHO IS CONDUCTOR HILL?

He Is Said to Have Been Victimized by St. Louis Thieves.

A despatch received from St. Louis this morning states that John Hill, a New York street-car conductor, had asked the police of that city to aid him in recovering $3,100, which he claimed to have lost in seeing the sights and playing cards with a card sharp.

It was alleged that Hill had recently come into possession of $5,000, several hundred dollars of which he had lost in the city last week for the West.

The name of John Hill, conductor, appeared in the directory as living at 242 East Third street. To an Evening World reporter who called at that address this morning, Hill was not at home, but a woman said that he had left the house an hour before, and she said that he had not been out of town lately.

GASWORKS EMPLOYEES CHEAT.

Philadelphia a Heavy Loser by Spurious Checks for Coke.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—The police have arrested Charles Douglas, messenger in the coke office of the Ninth Ward gas office; Benjamin Ingram, a special officer at the works; and four others, on a charge of conspiracy to cheat the city by the use of spurious coke checks.

It is said that the prosecutions will reach a total of thousands of dollars. Several of the men are said to have admitted their guilt.

WHO WILL BE SENATOR?

Indications of a Lively Struggle for Frank Hiscock's Seat.

Preparing for the Reform Club's Dinner to Mr. Cleveland.

There are indications of a hot fight over the United States senatorship when the Legislature meets, and unless a compromise is made it is probable that Mr. Cleveland's supporters who do not belong to Tammany Hall will again be at odds with the Wiggins.

Tammany Hall's candidate is Democratic State Chairman Edward Murphy, Jr., of Troy. Lieut.-Gov. Sweeney first proposed his name for the succession to Senator Hiscock, and Richard Croker endorsed him as an eminently qualified for that high office.

The Anti-Slavery, May convention Democrats, or Mugwumps, who are variously designated, think they are entitled to name the next United States senator from this state. They have already declared their candidate to be Carl Schurz.

Tammany Hall, however, will control a great many votes in the Legislature. Tammany men claim that they and their friends rolled up an unprecedented majority in a Presidential year, and, having won such a sweeping victory, they think they are entitled to the right to elect a senator.

"It is just like a Mugwump," said a Wiggins leader this morning, "they want us to work and they want to take the benefit of it."

"If they helped to elect Mr. Cleveland, or Cleveland himself, and then they would not take care of Mr. Schurz and his friends."

RAPID TRANSIT.

Father Knickerbocker—The Plan is all right; let its Completion be rapid.

Retired Brewer Advances $2,000 to a Strange Woman.

William H. Burr is a retired brewer, living at 61 West Eighty-fifth street. He is a shrewd business man, a man not easily deceived. Kate Murray, aged twenty-seven, of 207 West Twenty-eighth street, is a plain looking, apparently ignorant woman, yet she was held in Yorkville Court this morning in $500 bail to answer a charge of having swindled the shrewd, experienced business man.

Miss Murray told Mr. Burr, as he testified, that she was in great financial straits. She said she was a hard-working woman and an heiress of James Murray, of New Haven, who left an estate of $7,700.

Her ignorance of business was impressed on Mr. Burr, and during the year and a half that followed, on one pretext or another, Miss Murray managed to get $1,000 from Mr. Burr in sums of $100 and $200.

He became suspicious and she made an effort to get out of his hands the $1,000. He finally refused to give her the money, and she was held in $500 bail to answer a charge of having swindled the shrewd, experienced business man.
